

Welcome to the Office of Institutional Advancement at the Community College of Rhode Island. Our goal is to support student, faculty and staff in seeking and obtaining private donations to help students defer some college costs.

CCRI FOUNDATION

The Community College of Rhode Island Foundation was established in January 1979 as an independent, nonprofit corporation for the purpose of encouraging and providing support from private sources for CCRI. Funds are primarily used for the college and for scholarships, but are also used to support college-wide projects that include professional development, capital improvements, the purchase of educational equipment not available from state revenues, campus beautification, athletics, library resources and special programming. Visit www.ccri.edu/foundation for more information.

ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The CCRI Alumni Association works with the CCRI Foundation to raise funds for the college, sponsors social events for graduates and friends, and presents annual scholarships to help students buy textbooks and to help defray the costs to complete their education. Alumni Association membership is open to all graduates of the college. Since 1964, the Community College has graduated 57,000 students. For more information, contact the Director of Alumni Affairs at 401-333-7150 or go to www.ccri.edu/alumni.

GRANTS

Our goal is to support faculty and staff in seeking, obtaining and administering grant-funded programs that uphold the mission of the college.

The Office of Institutional Advancement will assist faculty and staff through the initial process of notifying college administration of interest in obtaining external funding, developing an idea, seeking external funding resources and managing the program once it is funded.
