Admission Requirements

The Community College of Rhode Island has a policy of open admissions that gives all Rhode Island residents an opportunity for education beyond the high school level. Students who plan early on to attend CCRI with the intention of transferring to a four-year college or university should take college preparatory courses in high school to obtain a solid foundation in the humanities, language, arts, mathematics and sciences. Students who have not had the benefit of this college-prep curriculum are offered the opportunity to develop this knowledge and skill base through a variety of developmental and introductory classes.

Prospective applicants who have reached the age of 16 years (the compulsory school attendance age in Rhode Island) and have earned a high school diploma or its equivalent may be admitted to a certificate or degree program at CCRI. (The equivalent of a high school diploma is defined as “demonstrated ability in passing all tests required to earn a General Education Development certificate (GED) by the Rhode Island Department of Education.”)

Although a high school diploma or its equivalent is not a general admission requirement of the college, provided the student is 18 years of age, intercollegiate athletic participants, applicants for financial aid or veterans’ benefits and students applying for transfer to some four-year colleges and universities must show evidence of a high school diploma or its equivalent. Students applying to CCRI should submit a copy of their high school or GED transcripts.

A high school diploma or its equivalent is required for admission to the following programs. In addition, individual departments may have specific admission requirements that students must meet. Since many of the programs listed below have specific space limitations for admission, it is to the student’s benefit to complete special admission requirements as soon as possible.

- Biotechnology
- Emergency / Disaster Management
- Histotechnician
- Nursing

All transcripts submitted for admission and financial aid must be official and sent to CCRI directly from the respective institution. Applicants with General Education Development certificates (GEDs) should have a transcript of equivalency scores sent to CCRI from the General Equivalency Center. Equivalencies from correspondence schools are not acceptable.

In the case of secondary education received outside of the United States, transcripts must be evaluated to be equivalent to U.S. secondary school completion. A list of authorized agencies that evaluate foreign transcripts is available in CCRI’s Office of Enrollment Services.

The College Board SAT Reasoning™ and SAT Subject Tests™ are not required for admission to CCRI.

Non-citizens: Students who are not U.S. citizens or who do not possess a Resident Alien Card (I-151, I-551) or I-94 signifying refugee status may be subject to out-of-state tuition rates. A residency policy is available in the Office of Enrollment Services.

NEW ENGLAND REGIONAL STUDENT PROGRAM
The New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) Regional Student Program allows students to attend CCRI at a regional tuition rate which is 150 percent of the current in-state tuition rate. To be considered for the regional rate, students must be enrolled in a degree or certificate program. In addition, there are three options through which students may qualify for the regional rate: 1) through the CCRI Interstate Tuition Plan, which allows Massachusetts town/city residents who live within a 15-mile radius of the CCRI campuses to attend at the discounted rate; 2) no public institution in student’s home state offers the intended major; and 3) CCRI is closer in travel time from student’s town/city than a public institution in student’s home state that offers the intended major. Please note that there may be specific majors that are exempt from any tuition discount, regardless of home residency. For further information, please contact the Office of Enrollment Services at (401) 825-2003.
