

Sexual Violence

Rights and Options for All Parties

If you have been affected by sexual violence, figuring out next steps can be overwhelming.

You are not alone, and this guide provides information and resources for the complainant (accuser), respondent (accused) and any family members, friends or bystanders.

The Community College of Rhode Island is dedicated to a safe and inclusive environment and prohibits all forms of sexual discrimination and harassment. Acts of sexual violence, such as rape, fondling, dating/domestic violence and stalking have no place on our campus or in our community.

Please see our Sexual Harassment and Sexual Violence Policy for more information.

- Complaint procedures: www.ccri.edu/hr/handbook/pdfs/BOG_DiscrimPolicy.pdf
- How the college will handle allegations of sexual misconduct: www.ccri.edu/advising/new_students/student_handbook/

All CCRI staff and faculty want to make sure you are safe and can help you in a time of crisis. Be aware that most faculty and staff are “mandated reporters,” meaning they are required to report a possible violation of college policy. If you are worried about confidentiality, contact the departments below, as these are the only confidential staff at CCRI.

MEDICAL ATTENTION AFTER SEXUAL ASSAULT OR OTHER VIOLENCE

CCRI recommends any person who experiences sexual violence obtain medical assistance at a hospital immediately after, or at least within 96 hours of, a sexual assault. Generally, one may discuss the incident with licensed medical personnel on a confidential basis. If you are concerned about confidentiality, discuss it with medical personnel to be sure.

Why have a sexual assault medical exam?

A sexual assault medical examination is beneficial for two reasons:

- collecting evidence important in criminal prosecution or a civil case.
- treating possible injuries or illness sustained from the offense.

Having a sexual assault medical exam allows you to obtain any possible evidence necessary to support your case should you choose to handle the matter through the criminal justice system or other legal process. This examination is a voluntary procedure, and it does not commit you to any legal action. Police involvement is not required for an exam to be performed. The Rhode Island Department of Health stores evidence so it will be available should you ever choose to pursue criminal charges. You can also ask for a Sexual Assault Nurse Examiner (SANE) to perform the examination if you are at a hospital with this program. These nurses are specially trained to collect and preserve evidence in a possible crime. Institutions with SANE nurses are indicated in the list of hospitals in the Resources section of this booklet.

Why preserve evidence?

Any person who has experienced sexual violence is encouraged to take steps to preserve evidence of the incident, as doing so may be necessary to prove a crime or obtain a protective order. To preserve evidence, try to refrain from:

- Going to the bathroom (unless you save a urine specimen in a clean container).
- Drinking or brushing your teeth.
- Showering, bathing or douching.
- Combing your hair.
- Changing your clothing (unless you place each garment worn during the incident in a separate paper – not plastic – bag).
- Straightening up anything.
- Throwing away or deleting any written or electronic communication like texts, pictures, videos, social media posts or voice mail messages or letters.

It is natural to want to do these things, but your clothing and surroundings may contain valuable evidence, and it is important that a physician be able to examine you as you are from the incident. If the incident involves any written or electronic communications (such as texts, pictures, videos, social media posts, phone calls), try to preserve copies and do not delete the originals.

Day One, an agency that specifically deals with helping people who experience sexual violence, has frequently asked questions and responses about steps to take after a sexual assault on their website: <https://www.dayoneri.org/task-force/index.html>.

What if I don't have any noticeable injuries?

Medical attention is needed to treat any possible injuries, including internal injuries or infections, even if there is no visible injury. Please note that there are some medical actions that are more effective if done within a few days after an offense:

- Treatment for sexually transmitted infections (STIs).
- Pregnancy testing.
- Evidence collection.
- Toxicology testing.

Prompt medical attention may be especially helpful to prevent the transmission of certain STIs, such as HIV, as long as medications are administered within the first 24-96 hours following an assault.

Will I have to pay?

To cover the cost of your medical expenses, you may be entitled to compensation from the Crime Victim Compensation Fund. This fund may retroactively pay for expenses incurred as a result of a sexual assault that a victim has suffered.

Day One can help you apply for the Victim Compensation Fund: 800-494-8100.

You do not have to provide your health insurance information to the hospital, and the hospital cannot refuse to treat you because you do not give them your insurance. However, if you provide this information, the hospital will bill your insurance for your care. If you do not want your insurance company to be billed, you should tell the hospital that you are "self-pay" and do not want to use your insurance.

You can also speak with a nurse at CCRI's Health Services: nurse@ccri.edu or 401-825-2103. Health Services is located at the Knight Campus in Warwick, Room 1240.

FILING A REPORT

Individuals have options when deciding whether or not to file a report.

- CCRI complaint
- Criminal complaint

Individuals may choose to pursue complaints via one or both options.

CCRI complaint

The Title IX Coordinator, Dean of Students or College Police can take reports on behalf of CCRI, explain the reporting process, and assist all parties with support and resources. Again, all CCRI staff and faculty are here to help, but some staff and faculty are “mandated reporters,” which means that if they know of an incident or crime on campus, they are obligated to report it. If you are worried about confidentiality, speak with confidential staff, listed on page 1.

There is also an online form for anonymous reporting:

Standard of Proof

When an incident is reported, the investigator has to look at the facts in each case and make a decision based on something called the “preponderance of evidence”. This means looking at the evidence and deciding whether it’s more likely than not that an incident occurred. This is a different standard than used in a criminal trial, and is not equal to a finding of criminal violation. All findings and determinations of responsibility under the Sexual Harassment and Sexual Violence Policy and Student Code of Conduct will be made using a preponderance of the evidence standard, requiring the determination of whether it is more likely than not that a fact exists or a violation of the Sexual Harassment and Sexual Violence Policy occurred.

Amnesty and Fear of Potential Consequences

The health and safety of every student at the Community College of Rhode Island is of utmost importance. CCRI recognizes that students who have been drinking and/or using drugs (whether such use is voluntary or involuntary) at the time that an incident of violence occurs, including, but not limited to, domestic violence, dating violence, stalking, or sexual assault, may be hesitant to report such incidents or participate in a college process as a complainant, respondent or witness due to fear of potential consequences for their own conduct. CCRI strongly encourages students to report incidents of violence to institution officials. A bystander acting in good faith or a reporting individual acting in good faith that discloses any incident of violence to CCRI’s officials or law enforcement will not be subject to CCRI’s code of conduct action for violations of alcohol and/or drug use policies occurring at or near the time of the commission of the incident of violence.

Criminal Complaint

A report to College Police is not automatically a report to the local police. Parties must tell the College Police when they report an incident if they wish to have the matter reported to the local police. CCRI encourages individuals to report incidents so the local police can help victim-survivors and prevent future crimes. However, individuals are never required to report an incident to College Police or the local police department.

INFORMATION FOR BOTH PARTIES

Privacy and Confidentiality

Some individuals request the college keep their name confidential or anonymous and/or not investigate an alleged incident. There are certain instances in which CCRI has a broader obligation to the college community and may need to override an individual's request for privacy or that the college not investigate a matter. Because confidentiality or privacy requests can affect the college's ability to appropriately address and resolve the behavior in question, we will weigh these requests very carefully and will act discreetly with regard to individual privacy and sensitivity to any situation that could violate the Code of Conduct or Sexual Harassment and Sexual Violence Policy. Absent special circumstances, the Title IX Coordinator or Dean of Students will share information with college personnel who assist in implementing these policies and procedures.

Interim Actions Taken During an Investigation

The College Police Chief, or someone chosen by the chief, assesses reported conduct to determine whether circumstances pose a threat to the health or safety of the college community, and if they warrant a warning, stay-away order for any persons, or any other interim protections. These interim protections can include, but are not limited to, suspending a student, placing an employee on leave or restricting any individual from other privileges. During the interim action, CCRI reserves the right to prohibit any individual from entering the college's property or participating in any college activities, unless they have written authorization from an appropriate CCRI official.

Prohibition Against Retaliation

Retaliation against any party or witness is prohibited and shall be treated as a separate violation of the college's community standards and/or policy. Retaliation includes, but is not limited to: intimidation, threats, coercion or discrimination against any individual for filing a complaint or participating in any investigation or proceeding brought pursuant to this policy.

Good Faith

There shall be no disciplinary action, retaliation or reprisal for bringing a complaint in good faith. Individuals shall not, however, knowingly make false charges of retaliation or sexual violence.

Advisors

All parties who meet with the Title IX Coordinator can bring an individual of their choice (who may be an attorney) for support and/or advice. This individual may not address or question the investigator, other parties or witnesses; may not present evidence or make arguments; and shall not have any role other than to accompany and communicate with the party requesting support.

Accommodations

Reasonable measures, assistance, accommodations and resources are available to both the complainant and respondent. A complainant may request accommodations and resources regardless of any decision to pursue an investigation with the college or law enforcement. CCRI will make accommodations and provide protective measures if either party requests them and the accommodations are reasonably available. We encourage parties to seek accommodations that best support them.

Common accommodations

Academic: Students finding their academic progress affected by an incident or allegation can request assistance from Title IX Coordinator or Dean of Students, who will help arrange appropriate accommodations. These can include incompletes, class changes, additional time for work, and other academic accommodations.

No contact directive: We will issue No Contact Directives when appropriate including, but not limited to, when it is necessary to minimize interactions between the parties or preserve the safety of the parties and other community members.

Financial Aid: If you have questions or concerns about student financial aid-related issues, please contact CCRI's Office of Financial Aid: ccrifafaq@ccri.edu or 401-825-2468.

Visa and Immigration Assistance: If you have questions or concerns about how your experience and needs may intersect with your visa and/or immigration status, please contact CCRI's Office of Financial Aid (ccrifafaq@ccri.edu or 401-825-2468) and/or the immigration resources available in the Legal Resources section of this booklet.

CCRI Disability Services for Students: DSS coordinators and support staff are available on each of CCRI's four campuses to meet with students with disabilities and provide the necessary and reasonable accommodations students need to be successful. 401-825-2164 | www.ccri.edu/dss/contacts.html

Additional Measures: Other arrangements, such as work accommodations or transportation options can be made on a case-by-case basis to provide students and employees with additional distance from the other party or to address other needs related to the experience, such as attendance at court dates. We encourage you to share your needs with the Title IX Coordinator so that we can work with you to address them.
